'OUR' HOSPITAL

A conversation between Mr. SMITH, a local Voluntary Hospital Chairman, Dr. ROBINSON and JOHN CITIZEN . . .

JOHN CITIZEN : "Tell me, Mr. Smith, is our hospital against the Government's pl n for a free national health service?"

Mr. SMITH : "I'm glad you asked that. The truth is that six months before even the Beveridge Report was published the voluntary hospitals had already drawn up their main post-war plan. They then backed wholeheartedly the policy of hospital facilities for all, regardless of income."

Dr. ROBINSON : "If I may chip in, it is a mistake to call it a 'free' service. The Ministers of Health and Reconstruction have both stated in Parliament that this is not correct."

Mr. SMITH : "Yes. That idea got about because the White Paper says the service is free. But since then in the House the Minister of Health used these words : 'a service of this kind has to be paid for, it cannot be free, everybody will pay.'"

JOHN CITIZEN : "It was the White Paper that misled me. But you are for hospital facilities for all, and so, it seems, is the Government. Where d'you differ, then?"

Mr. SMITH : "As to ways and means. That's all. But it's vital. As we see it, the Government's plan may well involve the extinction of the voluntary hospitals. What a national loss! It is only these hospitals that have a record of hundreds of years of service and experience."

JOHN CITIZEN : "Tell me more about what they do."

Mr. SMITH : "Well, you know that they treat six and a half million patients a year. Then, every medical student receives his training to become a doctor at a voluntary hospital—think what that means! They were the first to train nurses, and they still train more than half of them."

Dr. ROBINSON : "Yes, but that's not all. Do you know that nearly all the important discoveries that have saved life and alleviated suffering have been made in the voluntary hospitals? The latest is Penicillin. There are of course many more.

JOHN CITIZEN : "Is it true that the voluntary hospitals are hampered for lack of money?"

Mr. SMITH : "Of course, every year there are some hospitals that have failed to make ends meet. But in the last fifteen years they have been able, on the whole, not only to meet their expenses, but have expanded their services from 60,000 beds to 100,000 beds; and have increased their yearly income from £9,500,000 to £17,000,000. Throughout the centuries they have set the standard of medical progress and quality of service. Need I say more?"

JOHN CITIZEN : "No. Who would destroy anything so fine?"

Mr. SMITH : "Intentionally—of course, no one. But through lack of understanding of the facts which are complex, it might easily happen."

JOHN CITIZEN : "Explain."

Mr. SMITH : " Very well. The White Paper plan does not allow the voluntary hospitals to have any say in the planning or arrangement of the future hospital services, which are to be entrusted wholly to local authorities."

JOHN CITIZEN : " Well, that doesn't seem right."

Mr. SMITH : " The facts are simple and speak for themselves. In 1875 our local authorities were given legal power to provide hospitals—that's just on seventy years ago. Ask yourself—is the available service adequate ?"

JOHN CITIZEN : " No, it isn't.

Mr. SMITH : " Well now, I will tell you what the voluntary hospitals propose. They want the interests of the patient to remain the first consideration all the time. They want the patient at all times to have freedom of choice of hospital. They are anxious to take their full share—a big share it is—in the development and improvement of hospital services. But to do this they ask to be allowed to place their experience at the disposal of the people and have their proper share in seeing that the service is properly planned. This, under the White Paper proposals they would not get."

JOHN CITIZEN : " But what about cost? If the health service is going to be paid for by our buying a Government stamp, will our contributory scheme or works fund, and the other moneys we give to voluntary hospitals, still be needed ?"

Mr. SMITH : " Emphatically—Yes ! There are many reasons. Here's just one. The Government says definitely in the White Paper that their scheme will provide only part of the money required for the hospital services, and that the voluntary hospitals will have to continue to rely on the public for financial support. So we have to carry on ! "

JOHN CITIZEN : " I see that. Now, do you favour the Government's aims ?"

Mr. SMITH : Yes. We, perhaps more than anybody, want to make the National Health Service a success. But we must be able to work under workable conditions. We want—let me repeat, in the interests of the patient—that real partnership that has been promised to us by the last three Ministers of Health."

Dr. ROBINSON : " That's the point we want to make all the time. The good of the patient must come first."

JOHN CITIZEN : " Yes, I am thoroughly convinced. Now, how can I back you up ?"

Mr. SMITH : " By telling your M.P. what you think. Now's a good time. D'you ever write a letter to your local paper ? Try that."

Dr. ROBINSON : " Yes. And why not get that contributory scheme of yours to send its collective view to your M.P. ? "

JOHN CITIZEN : " Right ! I've always used our hospital. And so have my family."

Mr. SMITH : " When you say 'our hospital,' you explain everything. A sick man is an individualist. So let's work for our hospital, lest we find ourselves with only the hospital."

JOHN CITIZEN : " Depend on me. Our Hospital ! You've hit the nail on the head."
